

Tiger Terror and Snake Disaster: Religious Responses to the Animal Question in Medieval China

Chen Huaiyu 陈怀宇

Associate professor, Arizona
State University, États-Unis

Mercredi 20 juin, 14h30-16h00

INALCO, Salle 5.01,
65 rue des Grands Moulins, 75013 Paris

Chen Huaiyu received his academic training in Beijing and Princeton. He is an associate professor at Arizona State University where he teaches Buddhism and Chinese Religions.

His publications cover various topics on Buddhist monasticism, the interactions among Buddhism, Christianity, and Daoism, animals in Chinese religions, and modern Chinese intellectual history.

This summer he is finishing up his English book on animals in medieval Chinese religions as a visiting scholar at the Max Planck Institute for the History of Science in Berlin.

Silk painting from Dunhuang (Musée Guimet)